JUDGE DOUGLAS TESTIFIES.

SAYS HE NEVER ACTED EXCEPT WITH A DESIRE TO DO RIGHT.

He Had in Many Instances Decided Cases Against Members of His Own Party. Why the Court Did Not Allow Judge Clark to File His Dissenting Opinion.

Judge Douglas being sworn testified that he was born in Rockingnam county. He became judge in 1896 of the Supreme Court. Wood vs- Bellamy and the other asylum cases were argued and decided in the Supreme Court at the first term he presided. The decisions were based upon the doctrine that where the interests of a public officer had become vested, he could not be deprived of it. The decisions were unanimous.

Judge Douglas here, by request of Governor Jarvis, who examined him, went over the list of office-holding cases, cited by Judge Furches in his evidence yesterday, the full list of which was printed in that report.

Witness said that Caldwell vs. Wilson, Hoke vs. Henderson did not apply in favor of Wilson because the act under which Wilson accepted office had a proviso for removal in the act creating the office and he took the office with this condition attached. Witness wrote the opinion in that case. He read long extracts from the Supreme Court report in that case. The result of the decision was that Caldwell could hold under the appointment of the Governor until the Legislature assembled. In this case the Supreme Court commanding the ousting of a member of the railroad commission and signed by Walter Clark, judge of the Supreme Court. Chief Justice Faircloth wrote a dissenting opinion in that case. Witness here reads from the Supreme Court report the mandamus ordered. He said this case was carried to the United States Supreme Court and the judgment of the North Carolina court was affirmed. Witness said the circumstances in Day's case were as Judge Furches had stated, and Governor Jarvis said he would not take up the time of the court to go into details again.

In the case of Oyster Inspector White the Legislature had put the same duties belonging to one man into the hands of seven men. White had a vested right that could not be taken from him. In Woods vs. Bellamy the doctrine of in part materia was first invoked. Its use is to ascertain the first intention of the legislature and then carry it out as far as possible without conflict with the constitution. It is also used to apply to different statutes. The witness here read from his opinion in Green vs. Owens, 125 North Carolina Reports, as to his definition of in pari materia. Wood vs. Bellamy was ably argued and both the doctrine in Hoke vs. Henderson and of in pari materia was strongly urged by counsel for Wood. Asked what lawyers appeared for Wood and made this argument, Watson, for prosecution, objected and the president sustained the objection.

The case of White vs. Auditor first came into the Supreme Court at the fall term of 1899. First motion made was to advance it and hear it at that term, being a case in which the State was interested. It is customary when public interests are involved to advance cases. There was nothing unusual in advancing this case. The opinion was filed in this case in May 1900, and is reported in 126 North Carolina. The court adjourned June 19.

Witness said he was largely responsible for the court sitting so long that year; that there were several very important cases assigned to him, in which the court was about evenly divided; that he had been sick and it was a great strain; that Judges Faircloth and Furches got through and went home, but Judge Clark suggested that as he and Montgomery lived in Raleigh they would stay here and keep the court open for him to finish his opinions and file them before the fall session.

"There were no facts in White's case except in the case agreed so far as I knew," continued the witness. "The object of his suit was for a mandamus. He had been adjudged entitled to his salary and mandamus is the ordinary means of relief in such cases." He was not acquainted with White and never saw him until last week.

ACTUATED ONLY BY HIGHEST MOTIVES

Witness stated that no possible motive ever actuated him except a desire to do right in the administration of his office. He said the occurrences in the court when Harris applied for a writ was just as Judge Furches had related. The same when Harris and Cook came in at a later date. "Nothing was done about the matter as a court and I had no conference about it with any one Later Col. Kenan came in while the court was in conference and said he wanted the court to instruct him to issue the writ of mandamus. The court declined to do it as a court. On October 15th Col. Kenan came to my room at night and said in consequence of Judge Clark's protest and dissenting opinion he wanted the court to instruct him to issue the writ as a protection I told him that it was not before the court. I told him he could get it before the court by letting Harris make affidavit that he refused to issue the writ and then only could the court take official notice of the motion. Col. Kenan preferred not to appear as acting in opposition to the court."

Judge Douglas here read a memorandum of the statement made by him to Col Kenan on the night of October 15 and witnessed by Judge Furches. He read the written statement to Col. Kenan, which Col. Kenan testified to Saturday.

Court adjourned until 3 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Judge Douglas resuming said:

"Kenan again came in and asked the advice of the court. Furches told him it was his duty to issue the writ in accordance with the decision of the court. Faircloth told him the same thing. Kenan repeated the words that had been read to him the night before. Clark and Montgomery said he ought not to issue the writ. He never saw the form of the writ until it was read in a newspaper." "Col. Kenan brought the papers to my room," continued the witness, "called now Clark's protest and dissenting opinion. (The witness produced the papers.) There was a request by Clark in conference that the protest be spread on the record and the opinion published in the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Reports. We objected on the ground that there was no case before the court. The rule is that a dissenting opinion be filed before the regular opinion is published and certainly before the session of court adjourns. I have known of a dissenting opinion, after examination, to be made the decision of the court. No one judge has the right to instruct the clerk not to obey a writ of the court. Clark's protest was considered a personal matter, just as our opinion, given to Clark, was. The protest was merely an order from Clark to the clerk not to issue the writ of mandamus. (The witness here read the so-called protest.) There was some conversation between Clark and Montgomery. All I said was that he could print it among his obituary notices and Clark did not seem to take it kindly, though I said it in good humor." Witness had never taken part in withholding any courtesy or privilege from any assoociate on the bench. In constructing the law witness was always actuated by a desire to do right and had tried under all circumstances to maintain the authority of the legislative acts; had refused to declare measures unconstitutional when there was the least doubt; had never sought to bring the legislatrue into contempt or show disrepute for its authority.

Witness read from his decision in

"NO COMPROMISE."

Russian General Intimates that England Must Back Down.

By Wire to The Telegram.

London, March 20.—It is repoorted on the stock exchange that the British and Russians were facing each other at Tien-Tsin, and that British troops had been hurried into the disputed territory.

"There will be no compromise, none is possible," said the Russian General Wagack.

Count Waldersee, the field marshal, finds it impossible to cope with the situation.

Nantucket Stock Increased.

Thestockholders of the Nantucket Cotton Mills at Spray met yesterday in Durham and increased the capital stock of the mill from $125,000 to 225,000.

This increase in the capital stock $100,000 was made in order to enlarge the plant. This was the semi-annual meeting of the company and the showing made was very gratifying. The following officers were elected:

President, Mr. B. Frank Mebane; Vice-president, Mr. B. N. Duke; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. J. S. McAlister.

Directors: Messrs. B. N. Duke, Geo. W. Watts, J. E. Stagg, F. S. Fuller, B. Frank Mebane, W. R. Walker, and J. S. McAlister.

Attacked an Officer.

Two warrants have been issued for Mr. Zeb V. Clegg, one charging him with resisting an officer and one for assault and battery. It seems that Mr. Clegg had been drinking Monday night and Mr. O. W. Monroe, his brother-in-law, took a bottle of liquor from him in the restaurant of Mr. L. L. Clegg. Mr. Clegg objected to his liquor being taken from him and an altercation ensued, during which Mr. Clegg, it is charged, assaulted Mr. Monroe. Officer Merritt then appeared on the scene and attempted to part the two, when Mr. Clegg struck him in the face and inflicted a painful but not serious wound. In the melee Officer Merritt had both hands slightly cut.

The case was carried up before the mayor at four o'clock this afternoon.

Not So Dark as He Thought.

A good joke is being told on a young couple of this city today. The couple in question,it seems,had been to church Sunday night, and returning home passed under an electric light. Now immediately under each electric light there is a small circle of comparative darkness. When the couple reached this small circle the young fellow glanced all around him to see if any one was looking at him, and seeing no one, he quickly stopped and kissed the girl full in the mouth. Although the young man saw no one on the street, yet a couple in a near by house saw him, and they are telling about it today with a great deal of amusement.

To Keep the Dust Down.

The merchants of the city will, in a few days, be waited upon by a committee from the Steamer Company of the fire department, to secure subscriptions for the services of the street sprinkler. The money collected for the sprinkler goes to the keeping up of the Company's apparatus. No charge is made for sprinkling done up to April 1st, but everybody is expected to pay something for the six months commencing with April.

Editors Visiting.

The Durham Herald's editors and owners, Messrs. J. H. King and E. T. Rollins spent the forenoon here today. The Herald is a morning paper, and after last night's work was done, these gentlemen came over to spend a few hours with the newspaper people of Greensboro, who are, of course, glad to see them.

ITS BISHOP GRANDBERY.

Has Been Selected to Dedicate West Market Church.

Bishop J. C. Grandbery, of Ashland, Va., will dedeicate West Market church on Easter Sunday. He is one of the older Bishops of the Southern church.

NATURE DID IT.

The Serious Mistake Made by a Good Sister Regarding a Popular Greensboro Man.

The attitude of the Odell Hardware Company on the subject of their employees drinking intoxicants is well known in this community and a set of young gentlemen more sober than their clerks would be hard to find.

The genial manager of the mill supply department, Mr. W. T. Powe, has a countenance that to a casual observer would betoken a person of convivial habits. But his rosy cheeks are not acquired but were given him by nature, and their ownership causes Mr. Powe to be envied by many of the fairer sex.

When Mr. Powe first took charge of the mill supply department his cheeks had the same rosy hue as at present, and some months after his arrival a good sister who knew the attitude of the Company towards the drink habit, while returning from church one Sunday morning said to her husband, "I don't see why Mr. Ireland keeps that Mr. Powe. He looks like he drank a quart every day." Hubby was a man wise in his generation and he did not call into question his wife's discrimination along the line of telling a drinking man by his looks, but he told Mr. Ireland what she had said and they concluded that it was too good to go untold and so they called Mr. Powe in and told him, and no one enjoyed it more than he.

Mr. Powe frequently repeats the joke with great gusto, enjoying it as much as if it were on some one else instead of himself.

Piano Recital.

Mr. Waughlouder, a well known pianist and lecturer of Chicago, has been induced to stop over in this city and will give a piano recital tomorrow afternoon at 4:15, at the Normal. A nominal admission of 25 cents will be charged town people.

Very Well Pleased.

Mr. Arthur Cobb, son of Mr. Howell Cobb, proprietor of the Hotel Guilford, came over from Durham today. Mr. Cobb is a lawyer and has not before had theopportunity of going through The Guilford Hotel until today. On hearing the fine equipment of his father's house so well spoken of, Mr. Cobb modestly admitted that it would do.

General Ransom to Speak.

The people of this section will hear with pleasure the annoucement that General Matt W. Ransom has accepted an invitation of the Daughters of the Confederacy to speak on memorial Day, May 10th, Except for one or two speeches during the last campaign, delivered by special invitation, General Ransom has not appeared before the public since his retirement from official life. It is safe to say that he will be heard here by a large number of people.

Death of Mr. George Parker.

Mrs. George Parker died yesterday afternoon at her hoome on West Bragg street from pneumonia. The funeral conducted by Rev. A. G. Kirkman, occurred this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Moriah church, and the remains were interred in the burying ground here.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker have been residents of the city only about six weeks, coming here from Guilford College. Mrs. Parker was sick just one week, the attack being a violent one.

She was a native of the southern part of the county and has many friends here.

LAUGHS AT ENGLAND.

A Russian Official Says England May Do Something After She Has Caught Dewet.

St Petersburg, March 19.—Answering a question of the correspondent of the Associated Press, a competent official today said: "It is not true that Russia has yieleded to the representations of any of the powers and modified her demands respecting Manchuria, because no representations have been made. Every tentative attempt to address the Russian government on the subject of our pour parlous with China has been categorically declined. Russia is a great power that has the right to hold negotiations with anw other government and no other power has the right to interfere. Tentatives made in a friendly spirit, however, received a friendly answer. But, plainly stated, Rusia cannot receive inquiries regarding the above pour parlours. The result thereof will doubtless be made known later."

The informant of the correspondent of the Associated Press admitted the power rebuffed was Great Britain. He ridiculed the talk of a military conflict at Tien-Tsin. He said: "If diplomacy is unable to settle the controversy Russia is willing to submit it to arbitration, perhaps to The Hague tribunal or to some other arbitrator. After England captures DeWet perhaps she will have the courage for a military conflict in another quarter of the world. While he is promenading around the British forces, it is hardly probable that England will seek trouble elsewhere."

Funeral of Mrs. Elliott.

The funral of Mrs. Spencer Elliott occurred this morning and the remains were laid away at Pleasant Garden church. The funeral was attended by many friends, both in the city and at Pleasant Garden. The services were conducted by Rev. H. K. Boyer, pastor of Centenary church and the pastor of Pleasant Garden.

AN ATTEMPT TO BUILD A TOWER OF BABEL

Peter Armstrong, a Pennsylvania Fanatic, who Failing to Reach Heaven by a Tower, Built a City and Deeded it to God.

In the southwestern part of Sullivan County, Pa., on the mountain which rears its head over the valley in which nestles the now popular summer resort of Eaglesmere, lies the foundation of a second Tower of Babel, the story of which is a remarkable one. The region was a wilderness when Peter Armstrong of Philadelphia began the building ofthe proposed mightl structure, in 1864, but to this day there come afew ofthe "mystic" ones who weep over the failure of Peter's attempt to "take heaven by assault." Hundreds of men worked at these foundations and thousands of men and women hoped that by the building the tower they would be able to climb the lofty ladder into heaven in a material sense. Of all the religious maniacs which have taken one text from the Bible and made it, without context a moving religious force certainly Armstrong was the strangest. He never quite saw why that experiment on the the plains of Shinar was not a success, and proposed to repeat it upon the hills of Sullivan county. In the early 40's Miller had failed to take his followers to heaven on his special ascension day. Armstrong had been a believer in Miller and had prepared his ascension bores. As the affair did not come off, he thought a while and concluded that Miller was too theoretical. He would go in for the practical thing.

ARMSTRONG'S IDEAL.

Peter Armstrong at last conceived the idea that the trouble with the sojourners on the plains of Shinar was that they had built their tower on a plain instead of a mountain. He thought over it deeply and resolved to try to accomplish what the children of Noah had failed in doing, but to seek some high hill in some secluded forest instead of ground similar to that on which the tower of Babel was built. He communicated his ideas to the remnants of the Millerites all over the United States and was encouraged.

Peter then began to look about for the best place to build the steps which should enable him and his followers to reach heaven. He was a man of property and leisure. He looked over the ground, and finally fixed the place in Sullivan county. He put in his money and bought a large tract of land. With those whom he had summoned to him from all over the country he began the building of the great tower.

THE WORK BEGUN.

People flocked to his enterprise from New Lork, Vermont, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Michigan, Massachusets, Maine, Florida and Pennsylvania. Hundreds met with him in the valley of Glen Sharon, above which rises the mountain upon which he intended to place his tower, and the work of building the tower was begun. Men came to him with their wives and their families and a populous community sprang up. It was figured by some that the tower would be completed on the fortieth day, but when the day came and nothing more than the foundation walls were laid they began to get discouraged, especially after they waited all day for help to come from above and none appeared.

The peoples returned to their homes and for a short time lived in hopes of divine help, but at length believing more than ever that a matreial tower was needed they set to work again upon the structure. Why work was stopped upon the building is not known, that while his followers were working Armstrong was trying to solve the problem of perpetual motion

CELESTIAL FOUNDED.

Finally he left Glen Sharon and with his followers moved to a place a few miles away, where he established the city of Celestia. They built a house which they named a "halfway house for God's people." By this time Armstrong and more followers, who flocked to him at Celestia, the new sacred ground. Here he bought four square miles of land and deeded it to God. This deed is on file at Laporte, Pa. In order to advertise that there was such a place as Celestia Armstrong began the publication of a monthly paper. He called his paper the Day Star of Zion. It set forth the advantages of the new community and pointed out the fact that Celestia was a most eleigible place to live in as on the other day—which was near at hand— when all the rest of the world should perish, the people of Celestia, would be saved. All other land was to be destroyed except these four spuare miles for which Armstrong had given a deed to the Lord.

SECOND TEMPLE BEGUN.

It was as late as 1880 that they began the second attempt to build a structure which should reach unto heaven. This time it was to be a temple with a tower on top. The foundations of the tmeple were laid, and they inclose three acres beyond the foundations.

A few years past and one day old Peter on getting up from dinner fell dead while on the way to the watering trough. Soon after his wife died. The taxes on the four acres of land fell due and no one paid them and the land was sold. The old man's eldest son, who still lives at Celestia, bought the property on which he conducted the only industry of the place—a sawmill. Strange and weird as were Armstrong's ideas, it is certain that he was sincere in them, for he devoted to them every cent that he possessed.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

The UNIVERSAL VEGETABLE SLICER is unequalled for slicing all vegetables. The knives of this machine are of the finest quality of cutlery steel, carefully hardened and tempered and ground to a keen edge and the arrangement of the hinged lid makes it impossible to cut the fingers. It is adjusted to cut thin or coarse instantly by turning the thumbnut at the end of the shaft.

In other slicers but one vegetable can be sliced at a time, in the universal as many can be sliced at one time as the hopper will contain, thereby saving much time for the housewife.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20.

THE TWO LAST LEGISLATURES.

Speaking broadly, we should say that the difference between the Legislature of 1899 and the one just closed is the difference between statesmanship and politics. Carrying the analogy further, it could be said that the legislation of the two bodies might properly be characterized, the fiirst, as a result of the consciousness of the people of the State that a crisis had been reached, as an expression of the united will of the State's best citizenship on certain questions; the second—that will having been accomplished—as the pleadings largely of special or selfish interests. By this we mean simply that the Legislature of 1899 operated on a high plane, the members were impressed with the solemnity of the situation, and sobered by the responsibility that rested upon them. They closed the doors of their hearing to the special pleaders, and acted as men commissioned to do important work for the whole State, and not to be sidetracked on small things. They came in impressed with the duty of righting a great wrong, and they went straight for their object without shadow of turning.

The Legislature of 1901 came in under different circumstances. There was no great wrong to be righted, no overshadowing object to be attained. The members went to Raleigh without a special mission. There was no strong unanimity of sentiment impelling. The cohesive force of no single object bound them together, their constituents gave them no special mission. So the members who themselves had no axes to grind, fell easier prey to those who had. There was time to give ear to the special pleaders. Particular, trifling, or local interests became magnified, the ever present hand of the politician found plenty of work, and the lobbyists ran the Legislature much to their own liking, and the men who had scores to clear or plans to lay for future use, got in their work.

This same difference, also, has partial cause in the different circumstances surrounding the selection of the members. In 1898, the people saw clearly the work that was to be done, and they picked and elected the men to do it. There was more of the office seeking the man that year in North Carolina than in many a day before. The office seekers were not active because there was doubt as to the result, for one reason, and because, as we have said, the people were doing their own selecting. The result was that a superb body of men went to Raleigh, and they went with a mission. In 1899, the the work was done, the people had more or less subsided into listlessness, a nomination in most cases meant an election; the place hunters emerged from their hiding and got commissioned as lawmakers.

As with men, so with the Legislatures; the one with a purpose, and not to be turned aside from it, the other rudderless and therefore a prey of the winds.

The news came from Washington yesterday morning that the Supreme court of the United States has handed down a decision in the Wilkes county bond case. The court, speaking through Justice Harlan, confirms the decision of the lower court that the bonds are not valid, and the holders of the bonds, whoever they are, suffer the loss. The facts in the case, briefly told, are that the county voted bonds for the construction of the Northwestern North Carolina Railroad. After the road was built, the county became dissatisfied on the ground that the railroad had not done what it obligated to do, and contested the bonds, the contest being based upon an irregularity in the passage of the act by the legislature authorizing the issue. The Stanley bond case rests upon much the same ground, and perhaps will be decided by this case.

JUDGE DOUGLAS TESTIFIES.

Green vs. Owens, and said: "That was my opinion before any impeachment proceedings were ever thought of and it is my opinion now. I have never been influenced by partisan or political motives in any manner whatever. I had never read Hoke vs. Henderson until I was on the Supreme Court bench."

DECIDED AGAINST HIS POLITICAL FRIENDS.

He decided against his own political party and friends in the asylum cases on the strength of the argument and briefs made and filed by the learned lawyers who appeared in the case. "From the force of those briefs," he continued, "I afterwards decided other cases in consonance therewith. Wood vs. Bellamy was controlled by Hoke vs. Henderson."

Witness here offered to introduce briefs filed in the case.

The prosecution objected, saying no one thought of impeachment for following Wood vs. Bellamy or Hoke vs. Henderson, but for using these decisions as a base for operations whereby, by specious reasoning, the legislative will was overridden.

Captain Cooke, for the defense said the witness was charged with partisan decisions, and these briefs would prove what moved the judge in deciding against a member of his own party when he was unacquainted with the reasoning of Hoke vs. Henderson.

Watson for the prosecution said the impeachment acts did not commence until the Day case and no such were charged.

The president overruled the objection and allowed the briefs introduced as bearing on the intent of the judges.

Douglas said the convictions formed in 197 when he voted with the court to keep in office men of a different political party from himself were convictions that prompted him afterwards to sustain those opinions. "In Whit's case we decided all that was before us, and laid down the rule upon which White's claim was to be audited. White could have audited the claim without any mandamus from us, but when the Auditor and Treasurer both joined in a case agreed and called upon us for a decision we proceeded to settle it, as is the custom of the courts. After our decision was presumed, of course, that the Auditor would propoerly audit the claims. We did not presume to interfere with his discretion. The question presented to us appeared to involve only the rate at which White's salary was to be paid. We decided he should draw salary under the law of 1899, because it was the last expression of the legislative will. The court did not consider that the Auditor should report the amount found due White to the court before issuing the writ of mandamus. It was the duty of the clerk to issue writs or processes in obedience to the decisions of the court.

"There have been several mandamuses issued by the court. I do not know that the record of the court showed that judgment had been satisfied. It is the clerk's business to make entries on the record.

Owing to the rapid growth of the "City of Flowers" I find it necessary to increase capacity for coming summer work. Will shortly add a new 50 horse power engine and 60 horse boiler, washing machine and mangle. These new machines added to present equipment will put the "Gate City" on an equal with any laundry in the south. Would call special attention to the new collar and cuff machine recently purchased which will give either gloss or domestic finish, by simply changing gear from left to right and vice versa. We give gloss finish unless otherwise notified. Give us a trial and be convinced that we can't be beat. Hail white wagons or 'phone 176.

THIS COUNTRY'S ARID AREA.

It Is Larger Than the Domain of Some of the Nations of the Earth.

The arid region of this country is larger than the entire area of some of the nations of the earth, says a writer in the Saturday Evening Post. It includes portions of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico, and smaller portions of North and South Dakota, Nevada, Kansas, Texas, hundreds of thousands of acres in California, two-thirds of Oregon, one-third of Washington, and almost all of Idaho — altogether a total of over 1,000,000 square miles, enough, in fact, to accommodate one-half the people of the United States when the land is made productive.

To allow all this splendid country to go to waste would be contrary to the spirit of a practical nation.

All this arid land needs is irrigation. Already a large part of it has been converted to fertility by the artificial supply of water. Gradually and strongly the experts of the government have urged upon congress a policy of assistance which will convert many of these acres into fertile fields. In this way the suggestion has come that to the river and harbor bill there shall be added a provision for storage reservoirs in the far west. If it should be done land that is now of no practical value would be worth $10 or $20 an acre, and thus it happens that far western influences are openly in favor of the proposition. Something like $5,000,000 is the first suggestion in the way of the new departure.

BLANKETING ORANGE GROVES.

How the Young Trees Are Protected from the Frost in the South.

Who ever heard of an orange tree being rolled up in a blanket at night? They never heard of such a thing in Florida until the year of the blizzard when the temperature dropped from 55 above zero to 20 in one night and thousands of orchards full of fruit were turned black and bare. Now orange growers have blankets for their trees and when there is danger of a frost tents are stretched around them, and very likely big kerosene lamps or small stoves are lit inside the tent to keep the fingers and toes of valuable trees from being nipped. Only 30 seconds are needed to put up some of these tents which are already in place attached to poles beside the trees and operated by means of rings and strings. In an hour a whole orchard can be made to look like an army camping ground. Some young orchards of many acres are inclosed in slat houses which can be opened and closed like window shutters. Still another way is to inclose the orchard in board fences as high as the trees. On frosty nights a roof is formed by strips of muslin stretched on wires from one side of the field to the other. In all of these inclosures artificial heat of some kind is kept up and everything is used from hand lamps to big sheet iron "salamanders" and miles of stovepipe to distribute the heat to all parts of the orchards.

COLOR OF PERSONALITY.

How This Young Girl Sums Up Her General Impression of Others.

"What do you think of her?" asked the man, as he and the girl looked together at a drawing in one of the illustrated magazines, according to the New York Sun. For answer the young woman took up a pencil and wrote across the top of the page: "She is very distinctly lavender."

"What do you mean?" said the man. "The drawing looks to me very much as though it were done in black and white."

"Of course," said the young woman, 'but I mean the real girl of whom that is the picture. I always sum up people in terms of color. The general impression which anyone makes upon me—their look, talk and whole personality, is summed up for me in a color. This is the only way in which I can conceive a general impression of a person. Just as soon as I meet new persons and talk with them half a minute they become for me yellow, or scarlet, or violet, or some other color. As for that, names have color just as much as anything else. Florence, of course, must make anyone think of thick red plush.

"To see things in this way, of course, a color has got to have, in itself, a personality, and I dare say that my color personalities are quite different from yours. But that is another question and a very complex one."

Smuggler Caught by Accident.

Antonio Aznia arrived from Germany at New York wearing a belt in which were concealed $17,000 worth of diamonds. He told a customs officer that he had nothing dutiable. The officer was about to pass on when he stumbled and caught at Aznia's waist to keep from falling. His hand touched the belt, and the newcomer was soon dispoiled of his valuable shipment.

WINE OF CARDUI

THE LINK THAT BINDS.

JACKSON, TENN., Nov. 23.

I was subject to miscarriage for three years, and suffered constantly with backache, I wrote to you for advice, and after using three bottles of Wine of Cardui, according to your directions, I am strong and well, and the mother of a fine girl baby.

Mrs. E. N. JOWERS.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

There is no use talking—a baby in the house is the link that binds husband and wife together. Nothing is sadder than fruitless wedlock. The prattling and cooing of the little ones offset a thousand times the occasional worries and trials of life. When a wife is barren, there is a derangement somewhere in the genital organs, caused by one or more of those common disorders known as "female troubles". Wine of Cardui is the remedy. It puts the organs of generation in a strong and healthy condition, fitting the wife for the sacred duty of reproducing her kind. During the period of gestation the entire system of the expectant mother is built up to withstand the ordeal of labor, and when the little one makes its advent it is lusty and strong, well-fitted to grow to maturity in perfect health. The mother, too, passes through the trial with little pain and no dread. Wine of Cardui is truly a wonderful medicine for women.

A GOOD COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by C. E. Holton.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought that she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. Kings New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

The stomach controls the situation. Those who are hearty and strong are those who can eat and digest plenty of food. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the good food you want. If you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, belching or any other stomach trouble, this preparation can't help but do you good. The most sensitive stomachs can take it. Howard Gardner.

Headache often results from a disordered condition of the stomach and constipation of the bowels. A dose or two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will correct these disorders and cure the headache. Sold by C. E. Holton.

For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

RHEUMATISM | CATARRH — DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure and so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.
